Join Professor Omid Safi for a five-day workshop this summer designed to introduce teachers to key themes in contemporary Islamic Studies. We will explore overviews of the Safavid and Ottoman empires and their modern counterparts in Iran and Turkey, as well as the impact of Islam in America today.

- Gain a new perspective on teaching about the Middle East and Islam.
- Engage with scholarly texts, learn about classroom resources, and participate in experiential learning activities.
- Work in groups or individually to develop curriculum or materials for classroom use on these themes.

This summer institute is open to all currently practicing educators teaching grades 6-12 who will be teaching in the next consecutive school year.

The deadline for applications is Friday, May 26, 2017.

Visit https://tinyurl.com/disctstitute for more information and to apply.